

DOWN WITH THE DISLOYAL IN CONNELLVILLE IS SENTIMENT UPPERMOST AT LOYALTY RALLY

Gathering of Patriotic Men and Women in High School Auditorium at Which League is Formed Bubbles Over With Enthusiasm; Persons Living in America and Sympathizing With the Kaiser are Roundly Denounced; Joe Angle Heads the Organization.

WAY OF THE UNPATRIOTIC WILL BE MADE HARD

"I used to say 'Destruction to the Kaiser.' Now I say 'Destruction to all who sympathize with him.' A man can't help where he was born, but I say 'To Hell with the man who curses the hand that feeds him.'"

Fairly bubbling over with patriotic fervor, Pasquale Bufano made this emphatic assertion at a meeting of several hundred men and women of Connellsville gathered in the high school auditorium last night at which the Loyalty League of Connellsville the object of which is quelling German propaganda and putting an end to seditious utterances was organized. The words of Mr. Bufano typified the sentiment of the people assembled though its expression by others was in language less harsh.

Several addresses popping with patriotism were given and each speaker declared that the league was something which had been needed for a long time. Every person in attendance signed the membership roll and all pledged themselves to make reports of any rumors which pointed the finger of suspicion at some person whose loyalty was doubted. The executive committee will then take up the work of investigation and the member who reported the matter will be expected to stand back of his or her statements.

Joseph E. Angle was elected president, A. A. Clarke vice president, and J. J. Thompson, secretary. The executive committee is composed of W. D. McGinnis, Rev. J. L. Proudfit, George S. Connell, Elmer L. McNutt, J. L. Evans, Thomas R. Cunningham and Salvatore Desmonde.

A. O. Butler suggested that two women be put on the committee as both sexes would be dealt with if any women were found who sympathized with Germany. The suggestion was dropped.

W. D. McGinnis, in outlining the purpose of the league, said he wanted a red hot organization. "This city is not big enough for disloyal people and Americans," he declared.

Rev. J. L. Proudfit, appointed as a member of the executive committee, said he thought many of the false rumors circulated came from people who are pro-German themselves, and that the source of them should be thoroughly investigated. "It is a fine idea to have some sort of a systematic way of looking after these people reported to be pro-German," he said. "We stated that he believed nothing discovered by the league should be withheld but should be given to the public."

"At the end of this war," continued the minister, "I'll venture to say there are people in Connellsville who will open their mouths and say they had been disloyal all through the struggle. If we find them out let us deal with them as gently as we can—without killing them." The house rang with applause that greeted the stirring words of each of the speakers.

Instances of persons who openly declared themselves out of sympathy with the Red Cross, the United States or President Wilson were recalled. Reports made by Red Cross membership canvassers of being abruptly turned down as though they were beggars were recalled. The league will look after just such instances.

Membership in the Loyalty League is open to every man and woman in Connellsville, but the executive committee will pass on the applications and if there are any against whom there is some suspicion, a thorough investigation will be made.

P. Bufano was called on to express himself in regard to the league. He did not talk long but what he did say carried much force with it.

J. Fred Kurtz said he believed that reports should be made as soon as they are heard and the person who makes the report should stand back of it. Later a resolution drawn up by him was adopted by a standing vote.

Rev. M. Tomaschka, pastor of the "Lutheran church," said the Slovaks were doing their best to help the United States and that everyone of them was loyal.

Mayor Duggan presided at the meeting until Mr. Angle was elected president.

Both P. Bufano and W. D. McGinnis said unity and organization are what are needed. "If there is any one thing a community ought to be at this time," said Mr. McGinnis, "it is to be united. Bufano suggested the name thing. He said Germany had expended so far through her excellent organization. He reminded the members of the newly organized league not to forget about the work ahead of them after they left the building and returned to their homes.

The following obligation offered by J. Fred Kurtz was accepted by the league: "That we, the persons here, being in favor of becoming members of the Loyalty League of Connellsville do hereby agree to further the aims and principles of the organization in every way possible and do hereby agree that we will not only report promptly to the proper officials of the Loyalty League any seditious utterance that comes under our

LOYALTY A SACRED DUTY OF ALL, SAYS LIEUT. PERIGORD

Only By That Can We Win in the Struggle Against Prussian Autocracy.

A MASTERLY MESSAGE

Which Gives Us a Better Understanding of What France and England Have Done and What We Must Do to Restore Liberty to the Nations.

Those persons who heard Lieut. Paul Perigord of the French Army at the high school yesterday afternoon have a more appreciative understanding of the constancy and cheerful hopefulness of the French nation and the fidelity and grim determination of the English nation to endure to the end of the great struggle in which they have been jointly engaged for over three years. Those who listened to the French hero's masterful address also have a clearer conception of the duty which lies before our own country a more comprehensive grasp of the magnitude of the problem we must meet and a more accurate appraisal of what the cost will be in blood and treasure. Thanks to the courage, intimate knowledge and strong convictions of the speaker whose chaste language and polished diction were among the chief charms of his address, we now have a clearer knowledge of some phases of the war whereas we were before but ill-informed if at all.

Briefly and modestly sketching the part he himself had taken from his enlistment as a private when there were no vacancies for chaplains, until his mortally wounded captain handed him his sword and conferred upon him the command of the remnants of his company during the bloody struggle to retain Verdun, Lieutenant Perigord extended a cordial heart-felt greeting from the French Army to the American people.

"I am bringing you more than the greetings of the French army," he said. "I am bringing you the warm embrace of the whole French nation. For three long years the French Army has been bleeding, bathing its soil and crimsoning the waters of its rivers with the life-blood of more than 1,000,000 of its best men. They have endured it all without a word of complaint, fearful only that all their sacrifices might be in vain. When a new flag—the Stars and Stripes—appeared in the crisis, the French nation took new courage and hope, and in glad acclaim its people praised God and cried, 'Long live the United States!'"

"What France has endured since she first made a wall of her children to hold back the Prussian hordes that would conquer the world and the liberties of mankind, will never be known, cannot be known. What France has had to endure as its children have been ravished its children mutilated and all that a people could sacred or dear torn ruthlessly from them, it is not in the power or gift of men to tell."

A most beautiful and touching tribute was paid to the motherhood of France and to the mothers of the soldiers of all nations fighting in the cause of human freedom. Lieutenant Perigord urged the mothers of America to give more of their affection to their boys who have gone 'Over There.' "You cannot," he said with feeling emphasis, "give them enough. The French Army will never be conquered because the women of France are too strong and brave. Mother love is at its best when it is ready to offer its sacrifices on the altar of patriotism. There be those who are solitarians that their sons secure bullet-proof positions but are willing that the sons of other mothers go to fight. These are not the mothers whose sons will help restore civilization and righteousness in the earth. After the war there will be two classes of people in the world—those who are proud and those who are ashamed of the part they had in the great conflict. There has never been such a thing as a great German victory. She is going to be defeated. What has been

LIBERTY LOAN DRIVE HERE TO START MONDAY

BULLSKIN IS ORGANIZED

Enthusiastic Rally Held Last Night at Pennsylvan at Which Plans for Campaigns Are Outlined; Committees Go to Rural Districts on Sunday.

Beginning at noon Monday the committees which will make a house to house canvass of the city next week in the interest of the Liberty Loan will go to the Masonic banquet hall each day at 12 o'clock for dinner. Reports will be made and plans discussed to the furtherance of the campaign.

It had been proposed to hold the dinners in the basement of the Christian church but this was changed yesterday. Every member of the canvassing committee is urged to be present at these dinners especially the one on Monday when the real start will be made.

Bullskin township was organized for the drive by E. T. Norton and Robert Norris at a meeting at Pennsylvan last night. The meeting was held in the Evangelical church with a good attendance. The township was divided into five districts and will be covered systematically. William J. Miller, supervising principal of the Bullskin township schools, was made chairman with Mrs. Mabel Rhodes as assistant. J. M. Keefe was appointed secretary.

Local committees which will go in to the outlying districts tomorrow have all been notified of their territory and arrangements have been completed for carrying out the springing program. Each group of men has been assigned to some church or meeting place throughout the district assigned to Connellsville in the loan campaign and they will explain thoroughly the bond proposition and answer all questions which are put to them by the residents of those sections.

Some instances where a full knowledge of what the loan means is lacking have been discovered and through having the committees address the meetings it is hoped to make the bond issue plainer.

W. R. Kenney, town captain, has added the names of W. G. Kaufman, W. Beuchner and D. K. Dillworth to his team for the Liberty Loan campaign.

On Monday from 12 to 1 o'clock the Women's Culture club will serve dinner at the Masonic temple to the captains and the teams. There will be 13 tables with covers for 10 laid at each. ## TWENTY-EIGHT DIVISIONS FAIL TO BREAK BRITISH LINES NEAR ARMENTIERES

Haig's Men Outnumbered Have Held Fast, in the Main. Giving Slightly Here and There; Heavy Attacks Renewed Today in Order to Reach One of Three Objectives: Council at Cork Protests Against Conscription in Ireland and Appeals to President Wilson.

ULSTER VOTES TO STAND BY THE GOVERNMENT

By Associated Press. PARIS, April 13.—Twenty-four persons were killed and 62 others were wounded as the result of the German air raid last night on Paris, it was officially announced.

LONDON, April 13.—Five persons were killed and 15 others injured in the German air raid last night on England, according to an official announcement made today.

WITH THE BRITISH ARMY IN FRANCE, April 13.—With the exception of Neville the Germans thus far have not reached their objective in part in the present drive north and south of Arras but today's developments indicated that the enemy had no intention of abandoning the assaults immediately. A captured German document reveals that there were to be three smashes in the front north and south of Arras. One had Brilleul as its main objective, another Neville and Aue and the third Bethune.

Not less than 28 divisions have been employed by the enemy in this pretentious program which has meant that at some places the British have been very heavily outnumbered. A German division aggregates 13,000 to 14,000 men including 500 rifles.

The enemy seems desirous of reaching Arras a railway center and is throwing large numbers of troops into the conflict in an attempt to drive the British back. The German thrust in this direction is undoubtedly of considerable importance.

Yesterday and last night the enemy continued his pressure from Valenciennes outward and gradually forced the British to fall back from Ploegsteert and Ploegsteert wood until the battle was being started today near Neuve Eglise in the west.

STATUE OF FREDERICK THE GREAT IS TAKEN DOWN AT WASHINGTON

MAPS FOR HIGH SCHOOL

Citizens National Bank Turning Over Service When Used.

The Citizens National bank has just installed a unique and valuable feature as a window display. This consists of a weekly map window service showing interesting maps and illustrations of the leading events of whatever part of the world happens to be in the limelight. Just now, of course, the big interest is in Europe, so these maps will show the battle fronts in Europe, just where the American boys will be, together with pictures of interest in connection with same. The maps will be changed weekly and will show geographically the progress of armies and other events of world interest. Special attention is going to be given to the showing of the location of our American boys in France.

The bank has decided that after the maps have had their turn in the window, they will be presented to the local high school, making a most valuable educational feature.

U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE HOW TO GROW Early Cabbage.

When set in spring, the cabbage plants should be started in the window box or in beds some six weeks before the average date of the last killing frost in the particular locality. They may be set in the gardens as soon as the ground is in condition. For home cultivation the rows should be from 2 1/2 to 3 feet apart and the plants from 12 to 20 inches apart in the rows. Cabbage requires a rich warm soil for early maturity, a loam constituting a good type of soil for the purpose. It is an excellent plan to put a shovelful of compost under each plant. Early cabbage must be used as soon as it reaches maturity, or the heads are liable to burst and be lost. It is an excellent plan to grow early cabbage for summer heat cooking, as it has been found that kraut may be made at the time that early cabbage matures and will keep successfully. It is much easier to produce early cabbage than the later varieties for this purpose.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

U. S. DEPT. OF AGRICULTURE HOW TO GROW Okra.

Okra is a delicious vegetable that deserves a better acquaintance with the home garden than it now possesses. Say "Chicken Gumbo, Southern Style" to the initiated; that is all the argument needed in favor of growing this crop. It thrives on any good soil, and the seeds should be sown in rows 4 to 5 feet apart after all danger of frost is past, or about the same time as tomato plants are set in the open. The plants should be thinned until they stand about 2 feet apart in the rows. The edible portion of the okra is the pods, which must be gathered while young. They are used in soups or as a stewed vegetable.—U. S. Department of Agriculture.

LIBERTY LOAN HONOR FLAG

LET'S WIN ONE FOR CONNELLSVILLE

LOYALTY A SACRED DUTY OF ALL, SAYS LIEUT. PERIGORD

done is only the first act in the drama that will not close until the Allied armies have been victorious. "England stands as the knight and defender of France and all nations. To her fidelity and grim determination jointly with the constancy of the French, is due the credit of having prevented a wider sweep of Prussian devastation to western Europe." The speaker expressed the unbounded admiration of the French for the Irish, but lamented the fact that they had lent themselves to the influences of German propaganda. He was confident, however, that they will yet see that the house of civilization is burning; "will help to win liberty for the world, which will mean liberty for Ireland—liberty with honor, which is the only kind of liberty worthy of the Irish."

Lieutenant Perigord declared that France had been sustained most by the sympathy of the United States which early had its manifestation in the formation of the Foreign Legion by young Americans before the United States became involved in the war. He spoke appreciatively of the American Red Cross saying, "Wherever there is a wounded soldier or a home in distress, there will you find the ministering angels of the Red Cross." The high regard, affection and esteem of the French for President Wilson was, the speaker said, something the citizens of the United States are entitled to know. He declared that the messages and state papers of President Wilson on the war were greater documents than the Declaration of Independence. "That," said he, "was declaring the independence of a single nation; the former are declaring the independence of all nations." Had the United States refused to enter the war we "would have forever been disoriented among the nations of the earth and the words of your national hymn would have caused shouts and laughter of derision wherever sung."

Touching the progress we have made in the war Lieutenant Perigord said, without any intent to be critical, but to arouse us to the needs of the situation: "You declared war a year ago, but where is your army? You have a wonderful army in the making, but it is not a modern army in the sense that it is ready to meet that nation which has made war a business for 50 years. Where are your guns? Your planes?" he asked.

"You have been invaded morally, spiritually and politically so often during the years preceding and since the war that you have been slow to realize the necessity for preparing to meet the situation. But you are awakening to the fact that this war is not alone for France, for England or for Belgium, but for yourselves. You will fight and fight bravely and victoriously. You should be proud of your mission. Your great duty is to comply with every request of your President. The duty of loyalty is the most sacred. Every one not giving whole-hearted support to his government and to the boys you have sent to France should be ashamed."

THE MEANING AND MISSION OF THE LOYALTY LEAGUE

The formation of a Loyalty League in Connelville is indicative of two things having a very important relation to the attitude of our community toward the prosecution of the war.

The fact that the call for a meeting for this purpose was answered by a fairly large number of citizens representing all walks of life, evidences the growth of a more vigorous public sentiment on all that pertains to America's part in the war. The fact that an organization of this character has been affected serves as notice that the practice of disloyalty in any of its many forms will henceforth be unpopular, if not also dangerous to be indulged.

The conviction is being more and more forced upon the public mind that winning the war must be made the chief business of the United States. Every other activity, interest or concern must be subordinated to this end. Every hindrance to a speedy and efficient prosecution of it must be removed.

The prime purpose and object of the insidious pro-German, anti-American propaganda has been to retard every activity connected with our war preparation and to divert the thoughts of the people from the real issues involved in the great struggle. Disloyal utterances, sly insinuations, untruthful rumors, bold lies, scurrilous or malicious statements about the government, Army or Navy; refusal to promote the sale of Liberty Bonds, War Savings Stamps, or to support the Red Cross, Navy League, Y. M. C. A., Knights of Columbus, or other war auxiliaries, are but forms of that pro-Germanism which seeks to bring about in this country the same demoralization as was accomplished in Russia and in the ranks of the Italian army preceding its disastrous retreat.

Every person who gives voice to such sentiments, or who does any of these things, or approves such sentiments or acts in others, is consciously or unconsciously placing obstacles in the way of this country in performing its sacred task of helping to shake loose the grip Prussianism has fastened upon the throat of Christian civilization. It therefore becomes the very urgent, as well as the solemn, duty of every country-loving citizen, not only to make his or her loyalty an active, militant force in the nation's behalf, but to prevent or render harmless every effort that is intended, directly or indirectly, to make uncertain the issue, or to delay the day, when, by the grace of a just God, the united power and righteous wrath of the United States and the Allied nations at war against the brutal Huns and their blasphemous ruler, shall and will prevail.

That Connelville may do well her part in this great undertaking, and make it impossible for the disloyal in our midst to do theirs, is the reason for the existence of such an organization as the Loyalty League. Those persons who have proven, or are proving, their patriotism to ring true and their loyalty to the nation to be sincere, will find nothing in the activities of the League, its motives, its aims or its methods, that should make them or make them afraid. Those who have not stood, or will not stand, four square on the proposition that everything humanly possible must and will be done to help America win, are warned by the formation of this patriotic organization, that their pernicious activities will not be tolerated.

That is the meaning and mission of the Loyalty League. The anti-American, pro-German sympathizers who interpret it differently will do so at their own peril.

HOW TO REACH OUR QUOTA.

The completeness with which the details of the local Liberty Loan Committee has been organized, the choice of the most efficient workers of the city on its membership and the spirit of enthusiasm which has marked the preparatory work of the undertaking, give promise that the rather large quota of $518,000 to be sold here will be reached.

It will not be reached through the efforts of the committee alone, however well directed they may be. To make it such a success as will reflect credit upon the city, as an exemplar of patriotism, will require the fullest cooperation upon the part of the citizens of the community. This can be best given through liberal subscriptions, willingly and cheerfully given, coupled with a consistent and persistent boosting of the whole proposition. Every encouragement given the members of the soliciting teams will have a stimulating effect upon every worker in the campaign.

Given the impetus of a good start, and we will be sure to have the inspiring record of a fine finish.

DON'T PLANT TOO EARLY.

The last three days of March weather which has been belated in its coming should be a warning to those zealous, and often inexperienced, gardeners who would rush into the business of planting in advance of the proper season. Such haste cannot but result disappointingly. Until the earth has been permanently warmed early planted seeds will not germinate and the labor expended in planting them is another waste. Seed is scarce this year and there is use for every ounce of it. The supply should be utilized to the very best advantage, otherwise there will be a shortage in garden crops.

If gardeners will bear in mind that garden crops are divided into four groups, with respect to planting the seeds or setting out the plants, they will be much less likely to suffer loss. In this climate the last killing frost usually comes late in April or early in May. Two weeks preceding is early enough to plant cabbage plants from hotbed or seed box, onion sets, radishes, early smooth peas, early potatoes and turnips. About the date of the last killing frost beets, parsnips, carrots, lettuce, salsify, spinach, wrinkled peas, cauliflower plants, celery seed, onion seed, parsley and sweet corn may be planted. Snap beans, okra and tomato plants should not be planted until two weeks after the last frost. Lima beans, pepper plants, egg plant, cucumbers and melons will not thrive properly until the ground is well warmed up, or about a month after the last hard frosts.

We cannot induce nature to change her order, hence efforts to grow plants out of their proper season are almost certain to result in failure. If plantings are made when conditions are favorable to early germination, the growth will be quicker and maturity come quite as early as if the coming of a few warm days tempt gardeners to advance the season beyond its normal time. Make haste slowly is a good maxim in gardening as well as other activities.

Great joy must reign in Berlin. The 75-mile German gun has the range of a founding ax in Paris.

The fine imposed upon the Uniontown school children for removing the Kaiser's picture from their geography books was not a punishment. It was reproof for destroying school property and a recognition of the same spirit of patriotism that is sending all Fayette county boys Over There to help the real Kaiser from appearing in any more school books.

An announcement, "Men men to be added to the draft," is one that is very likely to be made with increasing frequency.

What have you done today to prove your loyalty?

BEWILDERED RUSSIA.

I fear that Russia won't behave until her people learn to shave. We cannot look for good horse sense in men whose shyness is dense, whose lambskins obscure the view, and whose block the traffic, too. I hope to see Russia rise from that deep pit in which she lies; I hope to see her rise in time and have a destiny sublime, but first her men will have to have the whiskers that impede the view. No nation can be truly great whose voters lack a hand to their eyes, and down the street, so long it gets beneath their feet. When poor old Russia spilt the beans, and swapped her birthright for some greens, and windy demagogues arose and turned her over to her foes, when desolation over her crept, the allied nations looked and wept. There was no harshness in their gaze; they sympathized with those poor jays, by fool advisers led far from where the wreaths of glory are. The allied nations weep and sigh, "She's hit the long toboggan slide; such spectacles disgust, delect, but what can any one expect from men whose whiskers seem to grow eight inches every hour or so?" And thus "will ever, always be; no future for the Russ we see, until, with motions strong and blithe, he reaps his whiskers with a scythe."

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.

Monarch Castle No. 81, Ancient Order Knights of the Mystic Chain, Moyn, Pa.

In loving remembrance of E. S. Pringle, died March 23, 1918.

Whereas in view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our friend and brother, E. S. Pringle, and of a heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him and whereas, it is but just that a fitting recognition of his many virtues should be had, therefore be it Resolved, By Monarch Castle No. 81, A. O. U. M. C. that while we bow with humble submission to the will of the Most High, we do not the less mourn for our brother who was taken from us.

Resolved, That in the death of E. S. Pringle this lodge laments the loss of a brother who was ever ready to profess the hand of aid and voice of sympathy to the needy and distressed of the fraternity; an active member of the society, whose utmost endeavors were exerted for its welfare and prosperity; friend and companion who was dear to us all; a citizen whose upright and noble life was a standard of emulation to his fellows.

Resolved, That we tenderly condole with the family of our deceased brother in their hour of trial and affliction and devoutly commend them to the keeping of Him who looks with pitying eyes upon the widowed and fatherless.

Resolved, That these resolutions be spread upon the records of the lodge and a copy thereof be transmitted to the family of our deceased brother and to The Connelville Courier.

CANDY MAN IS UNDER FIRE

Burgess Will Attempt to Compel John Cardes to Abide by the Blue Law Provisions Before Enforcing Law Too Strictly Against Drug Men.

Special to The Courier

MOUNT PLEASANT, April 13.—The local druggists held a meeting yesterday to talk over the Blue Laws recently put in operation by the local council and enforced by the burgess. Mr. Keefe was appointed as a committee of one to visit the burgess and be told the executive that the druggists did not wish to violate the law but that they do not think that one man like John Cardes who operates a candy kitchen, should be allowed to sell and clear on an average of $150 on a Sunday and they are allowed to do anything. The burgess told them that he would not ask them to keep the lid on tight until the borough had severely punished Cardes as a law breaker and then when that was done they would be asked to put the lid on Cardes keeps open each Sunday and pays his fine. He then deduced the borough to make him close.

THE PARAMOUNT

"THE SECRET OF THE STORM COUNTRY"—An eight-reel feature in which Norma Talmadge the screen favorite touches the highest note yet reached in her career, is being shown today.

Miss Talmadge one of the greatest emotional actresses of the screen portrays a role in which mother love is the supreme issue. With her depth of feeling, her extraordinary mobility and the ease with which she can step from pathos to fun, she makes of Tessie, the squatter's daughter one of the most compelling figures in fiction. The action in "The Secret of the Storm Country" hinges on the ancient feud between the squatter and the land owner. It is human and absorbing in the intensity of its appeal against class prejudice and throws the searchlight of cold justice full on the narrow unprincipled tactics of the self-religious capitalist. The sanctity of marriage and the home is one of the vital matters discussed in Miss Talmadge's new photoplay. It is a play in which childhood is pitted against motherhood in a terrific struggle for supremacy. Miss Talmadge is supported by Miles Welch and other screen stars of prominence. A selected comedy is included.

THE ARCADE

With many new songs, excellent comedy and pretty wardrobe, Mercereus Submarine Girls this afternoon and evening will present a blackface comedy at the Arcade entitled, "A Day of Deight." Summer Myers will be in the principal role, that of a colored man, and he is mighty funny. It is a character that is seldom attempted and one of his bits of comedy is taken from a big time vaudeville act. The song numbers include "A Baby's Prayer at Twilight," "Pray for the Light to Go Out," and a new "America." The picture is Hank Mann in a Fox comedy, "His Wedding Day."

ORPHEUM THEATRE

"STELLA MARIS"—An Artcraft picture with Mary Pickford will be shown here again today. Billy West the comedian will be featured in the comedy, "The Orderly." Monday, charming Vivian Martin will appear in the Paramount photoplay "The Fair Barbarian." A breezy American girl marooned by circumstances in a sleepy English town she brings the little township nearly to the point of spontaneous combustion by scandalization. How she wins over the social leaders to her side and makes friends of even her prim and snobbish aunt, makes a very fascinating story.

Indian Creek.

INDIAN CREEK, April 12.—Mrs. S. C. Karp of Davisstown is spending today among Connellsville friends and shopping.

J. P. Dowler of Clearfield, Pa., spent a few days in our valley on business.

Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Lyon of the Killarney Park Inn are calling on Connellsville friends on shopping.

Mrs. William Turner of Connellsville spent a day at the Killarney Inn. John Lyons of Rogers Mill is in Connellsville on business today.

WELKER COCHRAN IS PICKED BY CRITICS

Youngster Being Selected to Dethrone Hoppe of Crown.

Iowa Youth Has Been Improving His Billiards by Leaps and Bounds Since He First Broke Into Limelight Years Ago.

Time was when the man who mentioned any billiard player as a possible successor to Willie Hoppe as balk-line champion was ridiculed. The idea was preposterous, the talent declared. Hoppe was so pre-eminent in his line that there was not the remotest chance of anyone displacing him.

Hoppe is still pre-eminent, his wizardry with the cue is as faultless as ever, but nevertheless his ruthless play is being approached by a youngster who is planning a campaign to culminate in a challenge for Hoppe's many titles.

Welker Cochran, the Iowa youth, has been improving his billiards by leaps and bounds since he first broke into the limelight a few years ago. On a tour with Hoppe two or three years ago Cochran looked like a novice beside the master billiardist, but he worked hard, continually studying Hoppe's game and improving his own.

This year he has shown such phenomenal billiards, that critics believe he would be able to give the champion trouble at his favorite balk-line games.

Cochran is also a talented three-cushion player. He has never entered competition for the championship, perhaps for the same reason that Hoppe has refused to compete for these honors.

The National Three-Cushion Billiard association rules make it imperative for a champion to defend his title every two or three months if there is a challenge and Hoppe has never considered the honor worth the trouble. In the last two years there have been so many three-cushion champions that scarcely anyone remembers who they were. Alfredo De Oro has held the title three times in that length of time. This rule probably also keeps Cochran from competing.

WILLARD IN EXCELLENT SHAPE TO MEET FULTON

This, the very latest photograph taken of Jess Willard, disproves the tales that have persistently appeared about the great weight which Jess is supposed to be accumulating. As this photo shows him, he is in splendid condition, and would not need a terrific amount of work to condition himself for a bout with Fred Fulton or anyone else.

Since Fulton knocked out Frank Moran his claim to a match with Willard has naturally become more insistent. The only other man on the state horizon is Jack Dempsey, and Fulton seems to have first claim.

Bob Roche, who has been elected captain of the Princeton eight, is the only man with much experience in school, and who has never rowed in a varsity crew. He stroked his freshman eight in 1915, and was a member of the second crew in the two subsequent seasons.

TRIPLE IN UPPERS

Joe Canillon of the Minneapolis Millers, says he has no patience with ball players who kick on being assigned to upper berths or even dozing up in them. "Why, we used to triple in uppers," says Joe.

Some one expressed doubt as to that and then Joe explained the "system."

"We worked it by relays," he said. "Two hours in bed and two hours on watch. At the end of two hours, the man on the inside of the berth had to get out, the man on the outside moved over and the man who had been sitting up on watch climbed in."

FIRST MAN TO WHIP JOHN L. SULLIVAN

Jimmy Page was the first man to whip John L. Sullivan, but the records are silent. They credit James J. Corbett with that lone distinction.

Jimmy Page was headmaster of the Dwight School, Springfield street, Boston, Mass., and one of his twelve-year-old mischief-makers was one John L. Sullivan. One day, after the young man's teacher could no longer endure Sullivan's idleness and trickiness, he sent for Jimmy Page, long a hero in Boston's school circles.

"Step up here, young man," said Jimmy to John L. "Now you're going to learn better manners."

And John L. stepped up and, without a whimper, took his rat-tanning in front of the whole class.

But the records don't say a word about this first defeat of John L. Sullivan.

We have it on good authority that Jack Evers will have a prominent role in the American League race.

This Is HER Contribution To the Cause of Liberty

American mothers in all parts of the country are GIVING their sons to make the world safe for democracy. They are giving what is most precious to them, their own flesh and blood, to stand between us and the enemy.

Shall we then hesitate to LEND (at liberal interest) our money when they GIVE their sons?

Every Liberty Bond we buy helps to end the War and to bring safely home to the mothers of America their brave sons.

When you think that others are offering life itself, you must surely realize that the least you can do is to lend money, to lend it at good interest with the absolute certainty of getting every penny back. What an easy way to be patriotic—and yet how important.

So don't delay another day. Buy as large an amount of Liberty Bonds as you possibly can NOW.

Just think of the mothers of America and what they are giving. You know some of them. Don't you want their sons to be safeguarded in every way and to return home as soon as possible?

Money is needed to win the War and every day saved means hundreds—yes, thousands—of lives saved.

YOU will do your share now. Of course you will.

Uncle Sam's Food Lessons

Special Information Service U. S. Department of Agriculture.

DO YOU KNOW CORNMEAL?

USING CORNMEAL means service to your country and nourishing food for you.

Try corn bread and see how good it can be. There are many kinds. You will wonder why you didn't use it every day before the war.

It is very nourishing, too. A cupful of cornmeal gives even more fuel to your body than a cupful of wheat flour.

Here is a quick kind of corn bread. Our grandmothers used to bake it on a board before the open fire. You can bake it in your oven.

Corn Dodger.

Two cupfuls cornmeal, one teaspoonful salt, two teaspoonfuls fat, one and three-fourths cupful boiling water.

Pour the boiling water over the other materials. Beat well. When cool, form into little cakes and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. Make 14 biscuits. These crisp little biscuits are good with butter or gravy. Eat them with your meat and vegetables.

Corn Bread.

Corn bread is a good article—is especially good made with sour milk and soda, but sweet milk and baking powder are satisfactory. Eggs improve the flavor and add to the food value, but may be omitted if too expensive.

No. 1. Two cupfuls cornmeal, two cupfuls sweet milk (whole or skim), four teaspoonfuls baking powder, one tablespoonful sugar, two tablespoonfuls fat, one teaspoonful salt, one egg (may be omitted).

No. 2. Two cupfuls cornmeal, two cupfuls sour milk, one teaspoonful soda, one tablespoonful sugar, two tablespoonfuls fat, one teaspoonful salt, one egg (may be omitted).

Mix ingredients. Add milk, well-beaten egg, and melted fat. Beat well. Bake in shallow pan for about 35 minutes.

Spoon Bread.

An Old Southern Recipe.—Here is an old-fashioned soft spoon bread the Southerners like. With milk or cream it makes a satisfying meal.

Two cupfuls water, one cupful milk (whole or skim), one cupful cornmeal, one tablespoonful salt, two eggs, two teaspoonfuls fat.

Mix water and cornmeal and bring to the boiling point and cook five minutes. Beat eggs well and add with other materials to the mush. Beat well and bake in a well-greased pan for 25 minutes in a hot oven. Serve from the same dish with a spoon. Enough for six.

Cornmeal and Milk.

Do you use cornmeal mush for a breakfast food? It is both cheap and good. Cooked in skimmed milk instead of water it is extra fine, and the food value of the dish is nearly doubled. Here is a delicious cornmeal and milk dessert.

Indian Pudding. Four cupfuls milk (whole or skim), one-fourth cupful cornmeal, three-fourths cupful salt, one teaspoonful ginger, one-third cupful molasses.

Cook milk and meal in a double boiler 20 minutes; add molasses, salt, and ginger. Pour into buttered pudding dish and bake two hours in a slow oven, or use your fireless cooker. Serve with milk. This makes a good and nourishing dessert. Serve six.

Cornmeal and Meat.

Cornmeal is good combined with meats. Such a dish is a meal in itself. Try this one.

Tamale Pie. Two cupfuls cornmeal, six cupfuls water, one tablespoonful fat, one onion, two cupfuls tomatoes, one pound hamburger steak.

Make a mush by stirring the cornmeal and one and one-half teaspoonfuls salt into boiling water. Cook 45 minutes. Brown onion in fat, add hamburger and stir until red color disappears. Add salt, pepper, and tomato. A sweet pepper is an addition. Grease baking dish, put in layer of cornmeal mush, add seasoned meat and cover with mush. Bake one-half hour. Serve six.

Corn Helps Us Feed the World. The more we use the more food can be sent abroad. You need not tire of it, as there are at least 50 ways to use cornmeal to make good dishes for dinner, supper, lunch, or breakfast. Here are some suggestions.

Hot Breads.

Boston brown bread, huckleberry, molasses, biscuits, griddle cakes, waffles.

Desserts.

Cornmeal molasses cake, apple corn bread, dumplings, gingerbread, fruit gems.

TIME ONLY PAID $750 FOR A. RANKIN JOHNSON

"The Phillies today would gladly pay $5,000 for Rankin Johnson," said President Timpane of the Brewers. "We got him by draft for $750. So we could realize a nice bit of change by the sale, but we want Johnson to pitch for Milwaukee and not Philadelphia. The story coming from Philadelphia that Rankin would pitch there originated in Scott Doyle of that club. I had written Doyle previously that if Johnson refused to play with the Brewers Philadelphia could have him. But since writing him, Johnson has written me and stated that he must positively report to the Brewers, as the Philadelphia deal is off. Rankin wrote me that, while he would prefer to play with the Phillies, he would come to the Brewers if I insisted and I am going to insist."

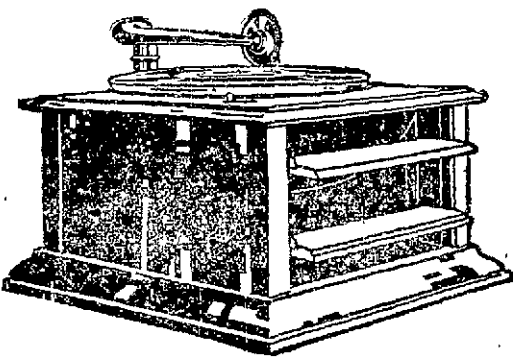

Chick Gandil of the White Sox has been placed in Class V of the draft. He is married and also has a bum knee.

Edward Mulligan, who had a trial with the Cubs, will soon be doing duty for Uncle Sam at Camp Funston, Kansas.

George DuMont, Washington Nationals' pitcher, has been placed in class 1 and will soon be at Camp Dodge, Iowa.

Dario Resta will be in the racing game again this year. It was announced recently. He will drive a car of his own design.

RAINBOW'S END

A NOVEL
BY REX BLACH

AUTHOR OF
"THE IRON TRAIL," "THE SPOILERS," "HEART OF THE SUNSET," ETC.

In O'Reilly's party there were three men besides himself—the ever-faithful Jacket, a wrinkled old Canaqueen who knew the hidden trails of his province as a fox knows the tracks to its lair, and a silent gaucho from further west, detailed to accompany the expedition because of his wide acquaintance with the devastated districts. Both guides, having crossed the trocha more than once, affected to scorn its terrors, and their easy confidence reassured O'Reilly in spite of Esteban's parting admonition.

The American had not dreamed of taking Jacket along, but when he came to announce his departure the boy had flatly refused to be left behind.

Fifty miles of hard riding brought the party to the trocha; they neared it on the second morning after leaving Canabana, and sought a secluded camping spot. Later in the day Hilario, the old Canaqueen, slipped away to reconnoiter. He returned at twilight, but volunteered no report of what he had discovered. After an impatient cross-examination O'Reilly wrung from him the reluctant admission that everything seemed favorable for a crossing some time that night, and that he had selected a promising point. Beyond that the old man would say nothing.

Supper, a simple meal, was quickly disposed of. Then followed a long, dispiriting wait, for a gibbous moon rode high in the sky and the guides refused to stir so long as it remained there. It was a still night; in the jungle no air was stirring, and darkness brought forth a torrent of mosquitoes. As day died the woods awoke to sounds of bird and insect life; strange, raucous calls pealed forth, some familiar, others strange and unaccounted. Sitting there in the dark, bedeviled by a pest of insects, mocked at by these mysterious voices, and looking forward to a hazardous enterprise, O'Reilly began to curse his vivid imagination and to envy the impassiveness of his companions. Even Jacket, he noted, endured the strain better; the boy was cheerful, philosophical, quite unimpressed by his surroundings. When the mosquitoes became unbearable he put on his trousers, with some reluctance and much ceremony.

Midnight brought a moist, warm breeze and a few formless clouds which served at times to dimly obscure the moon. Watching the clouds, O'Reilly hoped that they might prove to be the heralds of a storm. None came. When the moon had finally crept down upon the treetops old Hilario stepped upon his cigarette, then began silently to saddle up. The others followed with slowness, and fell in behind him as he led the way into the forest.

When they had covered a couple of miles Hilario reined in and the others crowded close. Ahead, dimly discernible against the night sky, there appeared to be a thinning of the woods. At first listening for a moment or two, Hilario dismounted and slipped away; the three riders sat their saddles with tense strain.

Hilario returned with word that all was well, and each man dismounted to muffle the feet of his horse with rugs and strips of gunnysack provided for the purpose. Then, one by one, they moved forward to the edge of the clearing. The trocha lay before them.

O'Reilly felt a pair of reins thrust into his hand and found Hilario examining a large pair of dinner's shears. "Do you wish me to go with you?" he inquired of the guide.

The latter shook his head. "Antonio will not keep watch while I clear a path. If anything goes wrong, wait here. Don't ride away until we have time."

"Never fear. I won't desert you," the American reassured him.

The two white-clad figures slipped away, became indistinct, and then disappeared. The night was hot, the mosquitoes hummed dimly and settled in clouds upon the waiting pair, maddening them with their poison. A half-hour passed, then the two ghostly figures materialized once more.

"Dios!" grumbled Hilario. "There are many strings to this Spanish guitar. What a row when they discover that I have played a Cuban danzon upon it." The old man seemed less surly than before.

"Is the way clear?" O'Reilly inquired. "As far as the railroad, yes. We heard voices there, and came back. We will have to cut our way forward after we cross the track. Now, then, follow me without a sound."

Leading his horse by the bit, Hilario moved out into the clearing, followed once more by his three companions. In spite of all precautions the animals made a tremendous racket, or so it seemed, and, despite Hilario's twisting and turnings, it was impossible to avoid an occasional loop of barbed wire, therefore flesh and clothing suffered grievously. But at length the party brought up under the railroad embankment and paused. As carefully as might be the four men ascended the slope, crossed the rails and descended into the ditch on the other side. Another moment and they encountered a taut strand of barbed wire. The metallic snap of Hilario's shears sounded like a pistol shot to O'Reilly. Into the maze of strands they penetrated, yard by yard, clipping and carefully laying back the wire as they went. Progress was slow; they had to feel their way; the sharp barbs brought blood and muttered profanity at every step. None of the four ever knew what gave the alarm. Their first intimation of discovery came with a startling "Quien vive?" hurled at them from somewhere at their backs.

At instant and the challenge was followed by a muffled shot. Other voices rang out as the sentry emptied his rifle in their direction.

"So! They are shooting bats!" Hilario grunted.

Antonio swung about and cocked his Remington, but the other spoke sharply. "Foot! If you shoot they will see the fire and hide us. A curse on the spider that spun this web!"

It was a test of courage to crouch among the charred stumps, enmeshed in that cruel tangle of wire, while the night was stabbed by dusters of fire and while the trocha awoke to the distance came a shouted command and the sound of running feet, suddenly putting an end to further inaction. Antonio began to hack viciously with his machete, in an effort to aid Hilario's labors. The sound of his sturdy blows betrayed the party's whereabouts so clearly that finally the older man could restrain himself no longer.

"Give it to them, comrades; it is a game that we can play!"

O'Reilly had been gripping his rifle tensely, his heart in his throat, his pulses pounding. As near a panic as he had ever been, he found, oddly enough, that the mere act of throwing his weapon to his shoulder and firing calmed him. The kick of the gun subdued his excitement and cleared his brain. He surprised himself by directing Jacket in a cool, authoritative voice, to shoot low. When he had emptied the magazine he led two of the horses forward. Then, grasping his own machete, he joined in clearing a pathway.

It seemed an interminable time ere they had extricated themselves from the trap, but finally they succeeded and gained the welcome shelter of the woods, pausing inside its shelter to cut the nuzzles from their horses' feet. By this time the defenders of the trocha were pouring volley after volley at random into the night.

Now that the skirmish was over, Jacket began to boast of his part in it. "Hail! Perhaps they'll know better than to show themselves the next time I come this way," said he. "You saw me, didn't you? Well, I made a few Spanish widows tonight."

When no one disputed his assertion Jacket proceeded further in praise of himself, only to break off with a wordless cry of dismay.

"What's the matter?" Johnnie inquired.

"Look! Behold me!" wailed the hero. "I have left the half of my beautiful trousers on that barbed wire!" Antonio swung a leg over his saddle, saying: "Come along, comrades; we have fifty leagues ahead of us. The war will be over while we stand here gossiping."

O'Reilly's adventures on his swift ride through Las Villas have no part in this story. It is only necessary to say that they were numerous and varied, that O'Reilly experienced excitement aplenty, and that upon more than one occasion he was forced to think and to act quickly in order to avoid a clash with some roving guerrilla band.

Food became a problem immediately after the travelers had crossed the trocha. Such apprehensive families as still lurked in the woods were liberal enough—Antonio, by the way, knew all of them—but they had little to give, and, in consequence, O'Reilly's party learned the taste of wild fruits, berries and palmetto hearts. Once they managed to kill a small pig, the sole survivor of some obscure country tragedy, but the rest of the time their meat, when there was any, consisted of liguans—those big, repulsive lizards—and jutias, the Cuban field rats.

Fortunately there was no shortage of food for the horses, and so, despite the necessity of numerous detours, the party made good time. They crossed into Matanzas, pushed on over rolling hills, through swarming savannas, past empty clearings and deserted villages, to their journey's end. A fortunate encounter with a rebel parida from General Betancourt's army enabled them to reach headquarters without loss of time, and one afternoon, worn, haggard and hungry, they dismounted in front of that gallant officer's hut.

General Betancourt read the letter which O'Reilly handed him, then looked up with a smile.

"So! You are one of Gomez' Americans, eh? Well, I would never have known it to look at you; the sun and the wind have made you into a very good Cuban. And your clothes—One might almost mistake you for a Cuban cabinet officer."

O'Reilly joined in the laughter evoked by this remark. He was quite as tattered as the poorest of Betancourt's common soldiers; his shoes were broken and disreputable; his cotton trousers, smudged by barbed wire and brambles, and soiled by days in the saddle and nights in the grass, were in desperate need of attention. His beard had grown, too, and his skin, where it was exposed, was burnt to a mahogany brown. Certainly there was nothing about his appearance to bespeak his nationality.

The general continued: "I am directed in this letter to help you in some enterprise. Command me, sir."

As briefly as possible Johnnie made known the object of his journey. The officer nodded his comprehension, but as he did so a puzzled expression crossed his face.

"Yes, I reported that Miss Varona had gone into the city—I took some pains to find out. Do you have reason to doubt?"

"Not the least, sir."

"Then—why have you come all this way?"

"I came to find her and to fetch her to her brother."

"But—you don't understand. She is actually inside the lines, in Matanzas—a prisoner."

"Exactly. I intend to go into Matanzas and bring her out."

General Betancourt drew back, astonished. "My dear man!" he exclaimed. "Are you mad?"

O'Reilly smiled faintly. "Quite probably. All lovers are mildly mad, I believe."

"Ah! Lovers! I begin to see. But—how do you mean to go about this—this impossible undertaking?"

"You told me just now that I could pass for a Cuban. Well, I am going to put it to the test. If I once get into the city I shall manage somehow to get out again, and bring her with me."

"Can—?" The general appraised O'Reilly speculatively. "No doubt you can get in—it is not so difficult to enter, I believe, and especially to one who speaks the language like a native. But the return—I fear you will find that another matter. Matanzas is a place of pestilence, hunger, despair. No one goes there from choice any more, and no one ever comes out."

"So I should imagine." The speaker's eyes were fixed to General Betancourt's astonishment. "Please me!" he exclaimed. "What an extraordinary young man! Is it possible that you do not comprehend the terrible conditions?" A sudden thought struck him and he inquired quickly: "Tell me, you are not by any chance that hero they call El Demonio? I have heard that he is indeed a demon. No? Very well! You say you wish to visit Matanzas, and I am instructed to help you. How can I do so?"

O'Reilly hesitated an instant. "For one thing, I need money. I—I haven't a single peseta."

"You are welcome to the few dollars I possess."

Johnnie expressed his gratitude for this ready assistance. "One thing more," said he. "Will you give me, boy, Jacket, a new pair of trousers and send him back to the Orient at the first opportunity?"

"Of course. It is done." The general laid a friendly hand upon O'Reilly's shoulder, saying, gravely: "It would relieve me intensely to send you back with him, for I have fears for the success of your venture. Matanzas is a hell; it has swallowed up thousands of our good countrymen; thousands have died there. I'm afraid you do not realize what risks you are taking."

O'Reilly did not allow this well-meant warning to influence him, nor did he listen to the admonitions of those other Cubans who tried to argue with him, out of his purpose, once it became known. On the contrary, he proceeded with his preparations and spent that afternoon in satisfying himself that Rosa had indeed left the Pan de Matanzas before Cobo's raid.

MORE MEATS.

Squabs and pigeons can take the place of much of our meat that is needed abroad. Rabbits and various game birds in season are also available. Squabs are young pigeons and may be broiled or served in casserole. Prepared as one does young broilers, they are delicious.

Pigeon en Compote.—Brown a half cupful of sweet fat with four pigeons, browning them all over, then remove them from the saucepan and replace with one-half a pound of salt pork cut into dice and one dozen white onions. When browned, remove most of the fat and add a tablespoonful of flour, stirring until well browned. Add a cupful of bouillon, stir until smooth, then add the pigeons with the rest of the fat, salt, pepper, a sprig of parsley and a bay leaf. Cover and cook one hour. Then add the browned onions, a few mushrooms, and cook thirty minutes longer. Serve with the gravy poured around the pigeons.

Pigeons With Green Peas.—Brown four pigeons in a half a cupful of sweet fat, add one-half cupful of soup stock, salt, pepper and small bunch of parsley and four green peas. Cover as a rule for an hour and a half, then add a pint of shelled peas and cook thirty minutes longer. Cook until the peas are tender if it takes longer.

Potter Rabbit.—Cut the rabbit into five pieces after it has been carefully cleaned. Remove the saddle, make two pieces of the hind quarters and two of the fore quarters. Fry a quarter of a pound of bacon until the fat is well tried out. Put the rabbit in, turn it until brown, then dust with salt and pepper; cover with another pan and bake in a quick oven for an hour.

Roasted Rabbit.—Lard the hind quarters with pork and leave a deep dish, covered with salt, pepper, bay leaf, thyme, sliced onion and cloves with a cupful each of oil and vinegar. Turn over and cook for an hour and a half. Then add a little lemon juice and a dash of salt.

PRAISES VIRTUE OF SILENCE

Habit of Carrying Down-Trouble to Outsiders is Deplored by Writer.

One pretty sensible girl, who truly loved her young husband, who as true loved her, came near wrecking their happiness through her uncontrolled tongue. She had always been in the habit, and a very proper one it is, of telling her mother everything in her girlhood.

Now that she was a married woman, she ought to have discriminated between what concerned her husband and what concerned herself alone. She had no business to tell her mother of confidences which passed between him and herself, and he had no idea that she would not appreciate this fact until she happened to relate "that mouth-ender" when I told her thus and so.

"Why, you didn't tell your mother that!" he cried. His tongue angered her and she retorted in a sudden flame: "Indeed, I did! I shall always tell my mother exactly what I please." "Very well," he commented coldly. "I shall understand now just how far I can trust you." Months and many heartburnings were required before this breach was healed.

A tender and petting girl is altogether too fond of flitting for consolation to mother or sister when some loved slight has been offered her by the adored one, who has recently sworn a thousand times that he will think of their comfort and happiness and that only, "till the sands of the desert grow cold." And then he goes off some morning and forgets to kiss her good-by, or he comes home at night without the egg-beater that he solemnly promised to get. And perhaps a foolish mother or sister says he is a brute and you can easily see what a train of evils might follow in the wake of this tiny little train of circumstances.

Don't tell anybody of your domestic troubles, big or little. They grow in the telling. The first lesson that the wise wife should learn is to hold her tongue.—Leslie's Weekly.

Taboo Manners of the Past.

Modern table manners compare favorably with those of the past. Mrs. Hannah Woolley, author of "The Gentlewoman's Companion," the standard seventeenth century book on etiquette, found it necessary thus to warn her readers: "Gentlemen, discover not by any ravenous gesture your angry appetites, nor fix your eyes too greedily on the meat before you, as if you would devour more than was your share, your throat would swallow." In carving avoid clapping your fingers in your mouth and licking them after you have burnt them. Close your lips when you eat, and do not smack like a pig. Fill not your mouth so full that your cheeks shall swell like a pair of Scotch bagpipes. It is very unbecoming to drink so large a draft that your breath is almost gone, and you are forced to blow strongly to recover yourself.

Jealous Minister.

"Why did you and that young minister quarrel?" asked the friend.

"He was nice enough in many ways, but he was so horribly jealous and unfair," said the lady, alluding to whom the young minister had been paying serious attention.

"Jealous perhaps, and naturally," smiled the friend. "But unfair?"

"Yes. Every time I would make an engagement for a moonlight walk or an afternoon stroll with some other man, he would pray for rain."

STARTING WITH A CLEAN GARDEN

Make Fight on Insects Which Are Menace to Success of Gardener's Efforts.

REMOVE BRUSH AND RUBBISH

Cutworms and Wireworms Winter Few Inches Under Ground—Much May Be Gained by Keeping Weeds
Down in Neglected Corners.

(Prepared by the United States Department of Agriculture.)

If the rubbish left over from last season's gardening has not already been removed, a general garden cleanup should be the first work of this season. Clear culture plays an important part in the fight against insects—a menace to the success of the home gardener's efforts. Many forms of insect enemies of the vegetable garden are protected through the winter by brush and other rubbish, which, if removed, would materially reduce their numbers.

Cutworms, which hide in the soil in the daytime and come out at night to feed on the tender growth and cut small plants entirely off, wireworms that damage the tubers of potatoes and other root crops; and a host of other insects, winter under brush and rubbish on the earth or a few inches under ground. Where they can find protection during the cool weather of winter, conditions are ideal for their survival.

Active During Winter.
"Aphids" or plant lice, are active during the winter months in the more southern sections and find food on ornamental vines and shrubs and on growing weeds which afford them food and shelter when other plants are not available. Much may be gained by keeping down the weeds in neglected corners.

Leaves, stems, and other litter should never be allowed to accumulate up to the time of planting, or there will be thousands of insects the coming year where there were hundreds last season.

Back-Yard Garden Well Taken Care Of.

Weeds should be cleared up and burned, together with all garden rubbish.

Work Soil to Destroy Insects.

The soil should be thoroughly worked over during the winter to destroy such insects as may be spending the winter on, or a few inches below, the surface. This is best done at least a month before the seeds are planted.

If chickens are available for the purpose, they ought to be allowed free access to the newly turned over soil for a time, as the fresh meat in their droppings will prove a welcome addition to their diet, and its removal will go far toward insuring a fair start to the garden crop.

WILL HELP OUR EFFICIENCY

Those Who Grow Abundance of Vegetables This Year Will Be Making War on High Prices.

A spring garden will be in order this year. Those who raise an abundance of garden vegetables will be making war against the high cost of living. If we are to increase our efficiency as laborers we should eat vegetables. Those who fail to raise them may not be able to eat them.

POTATOES STORED FOR SEED

Keep Best When Placed in Slatted Crates and Set in Platform in Well-Aired Cellar.

Potatoes for seed will keep best when stored in slatted half-bushel crates and set on a raised platform in the middle of a well-aired cellar, Guard against frost and heat. It will take two bushels of medium-sized potatoes to plant one acre of ground.

Would Be Worth Seeing.

A young woman from the east was conversing with a Kentuckian about tobacco and tobacco raising. She was very pretty and a good conversationalist, and the young man from Kentucky was vastly interested in her until she gave him a sudden shock by announcing:

"— should love to see a tobacco field; especially when it is just plugging out."—National Food Magazine.

Harry Heilmann, Detroit baseball star, is casting longing glances at the Marine corps and may enlist.

The "Preferred Investment"

The wise man selects his motor car investment in much the same way that he selects a first mortgage bond or any other high grade security.

He looks for permanent, enduring quality—not mere surface veneer. He looks to the integrity of the manufacturer, the critical expressions of the average owner and the history of the product over a period of years.

It is on this basis that we would have you consider the Paige.

From the standpoint of initial cost, our's is not a cheap motor car. There are many cars on the market that sell for less money than the Paige and we could readily build them ourselves if we considered that the best policy. But we don't.

We firmly believe that self-respect, comfort, and enduring satisfaction have an actual market value. So we build those things into our product.

We take just a little more time—just a little more care in the selection of materials—just a little more pride in our work. And the result is a real motor car—not a makeshift or compromise.

In brief, while we agree that first cost is an important consideration, we are convinced that Ultimate cost is vastly more important.

We believe that the only true test of economy is twelve months of hard, grueling service on the road.

We believe that freedom from repair bills and excessive depreciation is infinitely more desirable than a mere catch-penny list price.

These are our convictions. We have held to them staunchly during many fitful periods in the motor car industry. So long as the Paige Company is a factor in the making and distributing of motor cars, we shall continue to adhere to them.

And it is because of these convictions, and their practical application to manufacturing, that the Paige car is regarded as a "Preferred Investment" in every automobile mart of the world.
